East Village/Lower East Side Historic District: With GVSHP’s support, the City designated this historic district in October 2012, making it the largest in the East Village. GVSHP successfully advocated for a multi-building expansion of the proposed boundaries.

East 10th Street Historic District: With GVSHP’s support, the City designated the East 10th Street Historic District in January 2012. This is the first historic district the City has designated in the East Village since 1969.

Garveyn Market Historic District: This was the first expansion of the Greenwich Village Historic District. It was designated in 2006 in response to GVSHP’s proposed Garveyn Market Historic District. In 2007, the City designated the Greenwich Village Historic District as the Greenwich Village Historic District Extension.

Greenwich Village Historic District Extension: With a 2005 decision in response to GVSHP’s proposals for landmarking the Far West Village, this was the first expansion of the Greenwich Village Historic District, and only the second new historic district in Greenwich Village since 1969.

Nolita Historic District / Nolita East Historic District / Nolita Historic District Extension: GVSHP was a staunch advocate for extending landmark protections to Nolita. A 2004 expansion of the Nolita Historic District was designated in 1999, GVSHP continued to push for designation of the remainder of the neighborhood, which took place in 2005 (Nolita East Historic District) and 2008 (Nolita Historic District Extensions).

Sulli-Cast Inn Historic District Extension: With GVSHP’s support, the City expanded the Sulli-Cast Inn Historic District extension to the Sulli-Cast Inn Historic District in 2010. Four of these properties are located in GVSHP’s proposed South Village Historic District.

South Village Extension of the Greenwich Village Historic District: In 2010, the City landmarked the “phase II” of GVSHP’s proposed South Village Historic District as the Greenwich Village Historic District Extension II. This 235-building, 12-block designation was the largest expansion of landmark protections in Greenwich Village since 1969.

South Village Historic District: In 2013, the City landmarked another part (“phase III”) of GVSHP’s proposed South Village Historic District as a new South Village Historic District. The district originally excluded three NYU buildings which GVSHP successfully fought to have added in, including the low-rise building at 130 Washington Street. In 2016, the City downzoned another section of the Far West Village that had been zoned C1-1 and thus favored commercial and hotel development, as GVSHP and other community groups had fought for over two years to have them do.

- INDIVIDUAL LANDMARKS -

4. 5th Marks Place: Designated in 2004, No. 5 St. Marks Place was among 13 federal houses designated on the New York Landmarks Conservancy proposed landmark designation in 2003.

32, 34, and 36 Dominick Street: These three 1826 federal houses – some of the oldest in the area – were landmarked in 2012 by the City and supported by GVSHP.

57 Sullivan Street: No. 57 Sullivan Street was one of 13 federal houses landmarked by GVSHP and the NY Landmarks Conservancy proposed landmark designation in 2003. A public hearing on designation was held in 2009.

67 & 94 Greenwich Street: Nos. 67 & 94 Greenwich Street were among 13 federal houses landmarked by GVSHP and the New York Landmarks Conservancy proposed landmark designation in 2003. They were designated in 2005 and 2009, respectively.

127, 129, and 131 MacDougal Street Nos. 127, 129, and 131 MacDougal Street were among 13 federal houses landmarked by GVSHP and the New York Landmarks Conservancy proposed landmark designation in 2003. They were designated in 2004.

195 Charles Street: Designated in 2007, this 1838 house was one of eight Far West Village sites the City committed to landmark in 2005 in response to GVSHP and other groups’ proposed Far West Village Historic District.

301 Spring Street: This federal house in the Hudson Square neighborhood was landmarked in 2009. It was supported by GVSHP and the City landmarked the entire complex.

1898 Reiss Building: In 2009, the City landmarked the Reiss Building, one of eight sites in the Far West Village. It was designated in 2009 in response to GVSHP and other groups’ proposed Far West Village Historic District.

4. F.W. Devore & Co. Paint Factory: In 2008, the City landmarked this former factory as the Greenwich Village Historic District. It was designated in 2008 in response to GVSHP and other groups’ proposed Far West Village Historic District.

Keller Hotel: The City designated this 1898 hotel in 2007. One was eight sites the City committed to landmark in 2005 in response to GVSHP and other groups’ proposed Far West Village Historic District.

R. H. Macy & Co. Store, 14th Street Annex: The former 1898 home of Macy’s at 56 West 14th Street was designated in 2011. GVSHP supported this important step to preserve the historic 14th Street corridor.

- OTHER SITES -

NYU2001 Plan: In 2011, under pressure from GVSHP and others, NYU dropped from their plans a proposed 430 ft. tall tower on Bleecker Street, which would have been the tallest building ever in the Village. Though the City legally could approve it, NYU submitted a proposal to the LPC to hold a public hearing on designation.

Webster Hall: GVSHP proposed Webster Hall for landmark designation in 2007, and it was designated in 2008. Designation honors the 120-year political, social, and cultural history of Webster Hall.

Westbeth: A small portion of Westbeth, formerly part of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, had been listed on the National Register of Historic Places since 1975. In 2008, GVSHP successfully submitted a nomination to place the entire Westbeth complex on the Register. In 2011, the City landmarked the entire complex. It was one of eight sites in the Far West Village, including 131 MacDougal Street and 1898 Reiss Building, to be designated historic district to then also be individually landmarked.

Van Tassel & Kearney Auction Mart: After a six-year campaign led by GVSHP, 128 East 13th Street was designated an individual landmark in 2012. This unique 1903-04 building is one of the few surviving homes of the Midtown East Village neighborhood.

Webster Hall: GVSHP proposed Webster Hall for landmark designation in 2007, and it was designated in 2008. Designation honors the 120-year political, social, and cultural history of Webster Hall.

Westbeth: A small portion of Westbeth, formerly part of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, had been listed on the National Register of Historic Places since 1975. In 2008, GVSHP successfully submitted a nomination to place the entire Westbeth complex on the Register. In 2011, the City landmarked the entire complex. It was one of eight sites in the Far West Village, including 131 MacDougal Street and 1898 Reiss Building, to be designated historic district to then also be individually landmarked.

Van Tassel & Kearney Auction Mart: After a six-year campaign led by GVSHP, 128 East 13th Street was designated an individual landmark in 2012. This unique 1903-04 building is one of the few surviving homes of the Midtown East Village neighborhood.

Webster Hall: GVSHP proposed Webster Hall for landmark designation in 2007, and it was designated in 2008. Designation honors the 120-year political, social, and cultural history of Webster Hall.

Westbeth: A small portion of Westbeth, formerly part of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, had been listed on the National Register of Historic Places since 1975. In 2008, GVSHP successfully submitted a nomination to place the entire Westbeth complex on the Register. In 2011, the City landmarked the entire complex. It was one of eight sites in the Far West Village, including 131 MacDougal Street and 1898 Reiss Building, to be designated historic district to then also be individually landmarked.

Van Tassel & Kearney Auction Mart: After a six-year campaign led by GVSHP, 128 East 13th Street was designated an individual landmark in 2012. This unique 1903-04 building is one of the few surviving homes of the Midtown East Village neighborhood.

Webster Hall: GVSHP proposed Webster Hall for landmark designation in 2007, and it was designated in 2008. Designation honors the 120-year political, social, and cultural history of Webster Hall.

Westbeth: A small portion of Westbeth, formerly part of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, had been listed on the National Register of Historic Places since 1975. In 2008, GVSHP successfully submitted a nomination to place the entire Westbeth complex on the Register. In 2011, the City landmarked the entire complex. It was one of eight sites in the Far West Village, including 131 MacDougal Street and 1898 Reiss Building, to be designated historic district to then also be individually landmarked.

Van Tassel & Kearney Auction Mart: After a six-year campaign led by GVSHP, 128 East 13th Street was designated an individual landmark in 2012. This unique 1903-04 building is one of the few surviving homes of the Midtown East Village neighborhood.

Webster Hall: GVSHP proposed Webster Hall for landmark designation in 2007, and it was designated in 2008. Designation honors the 120-year political, social, and cultural history of Webster Hall.

Westbeth: A small portion of Westbeth, formerly part of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, had been listed on the National Register of Historic Places since 1975. In 2008, GVSHP successfully submitted a nomination to place the entire Westbeth complex on the Register. In 2011, the City landmarked the entire complex. It was one of eight sites in the Far West Village, including 131 MacDougal Street and 1898 Reiss Building, to be designated historic district to then also be individually landmarked.